

..... Wild Trails at Corbett National Park.....

One of India's best known and oldest wildlife sanctuaries, the Jim Corbett National Park, lies along the Ramganga River at the foot of the Kumaon Hills. It is named after a British hunter - Edward James Corbett alias Jim Corbett, the famous naturalist and the legendary hunter of the man-eaters of Kumaon. The main areas for tourists are the Dhikala Tourism Zone (entry through Dhangarhi Gate) and the Bijrani Tourism Zone (entry through the Amdanda Gate). The magical landscape of Corbett is well known and fabled for its tiger richness.

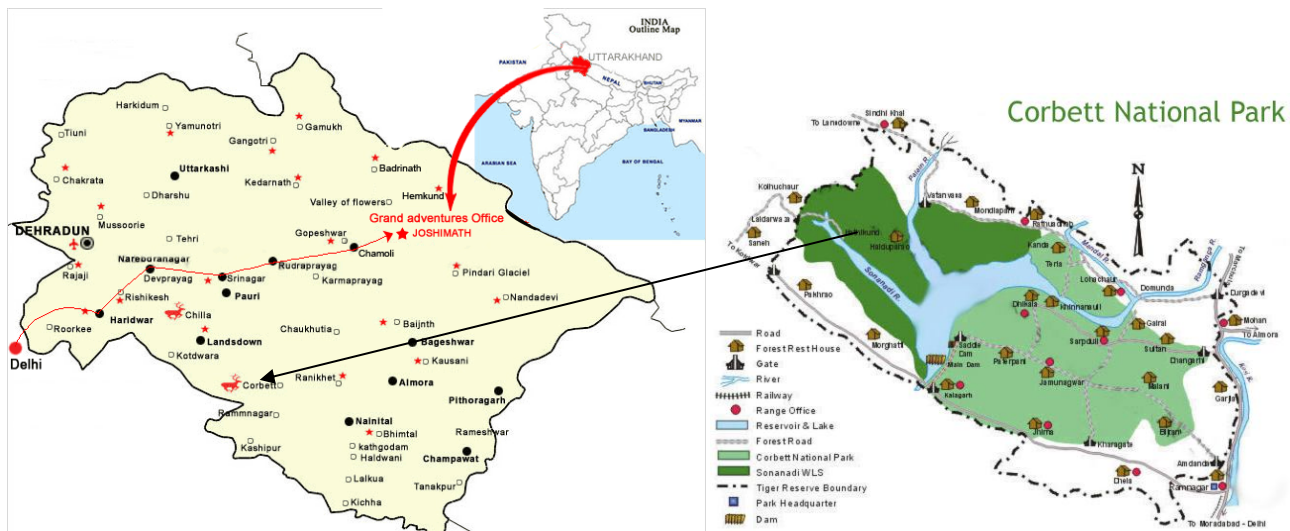

The park came into existence in 1936 as Hailey National Park to protect the endangered species of Royal Bengal Tiger. The park is located between 29°25' and 29°39'N latitude and between 78°44' and 79°07'E longitude. The present area of the reserve is 1,318.54 square kilometres (509.09 sq mi) including 520 square kilometres (200 sq mi) of core area and 797.72 square kilometres (308.00 sq mi) of buffer area. area of hills, riverine belts, marshy depressions, grasslands and a large lake. The elevation ranges from 1,300 to 4,000 ft (400 to 1,220 m). Winter nights are cold but the days are bright and sunny. It rains from July to September.

The plant life of the Corbett reflects the varied physical and environment features of the park. Plants of Corbett include species typical of the Himalayas as well as those occurring in Gangetic plains. Distinct species of trees, Shrubs, Herbs, Grasses, Ferns and Fungi have been recorded from here. The vast richness is responsible for the diversity of animals which use plants as food and habitat.

Besides the healthy population of Tiger, Corbett has over fifty species of mammals. The largest of these are the Asiatic Elephants. Four species of Deer are also found here.

The Ghariyal is an extremely rare animal found only in a few rivers in South Asia. The Ramganga is one of the few places where you can see these peculiar creatures in the wild.

Driving on the park's trails you are likely to come across a Bengal Monitor Lizard - in imposing reptile up to six feet long. In the thickets you may also see the King Cobra. The cobra is an aggressive hunter and guesses what its favorite foods!
