

🌿🌳 "Pilibhit Calling — India's Best-Kept Terai Secret" 🌳🦋

Pilibhit Tiger Reserve is situated in Pilibhit district of Uttar Pradesh. It was declared a tiger reserve in the year 2014. This reserve is a part of the Terai Arc Landscape, located in the upper Gangetic Plain along the India-Nepal border. The area has sal forests, tall grasslands, and swamps, which get their water from the periodic flooding of rivers. The Sharda Sagar Dam, which is about 22 km (14 miles) long, is located on the boundary of the reserve.

Pilibhit is one of the few districts in Uttar Pradesh that still has good forest cover. As per an estimate from 2018, Pilibhit district has more than 800 sq kms (310 sq miles) of forest area, which makes up about 23% of the total district area. These forests are home to at least 65 tigers, along with a good number of prey animals, including five different species of deer. The tiger reserve also won the first-ever international TX2 award for doubling its tiger population within the given time frame.

The reserve is home to more than 127 animal species, 326 bird species, and 2,100 flowering plants. It has a mix of tall sal forests, plantations, and grasslands, along with several water bodies. The forest supports many wild animals, including the endangered tiger, swamp deer, Bengal florican, hog deer, and leopard. These big carnivores are supported by a large number of prey animals such as cheetal, sambar, wild boar, hog deer, swamp deer, and blue bull. The bird life here is also very rich, and visitors can spot hundreds of bird species throughout the year. The Chuka Interpretation Zone, which has a nature interpretation centre, cottages, and is located beside a large water body, is one of the most unique and popular spots for visitors.

The climate of Pilibhit Tiger Reserve is mostly dry and hot, which supports a mix of dry teak forest along with Vindhya mountain soils. The main forest types found here are open woodlands, grasslands, and riverine areas covered with thorny bushes and tall grass. The dry deciduous forests look lush green during the monsoon season, but in summer, they change completely and take on a dry, grey appearance. Some of the important plant species found in Pilibhit Tiger Reserve include Tectona Grandis, Buchnanian latifolia, Anogeissus pendula, and Madhuca indica.
